Telstar-bred hockey skills tallying points at Gould

By ALISON ALOISIO

The 1995 Gould field hockey team looks even stronger than last year's MAISAD championship squad. Thanks, at least in part, to Telstar Middle School.

As was the case last year, half of this year's Gould team is made up of Bethel-area students, most of whom learned their basic skills from Telstar coaches Elaine Hutchins and Sheri Head.

"They were good. They helped us a lot. They taught us really good skills, and gave us a solid foundation to build on," said Gould sophomore Katie Chapman last week.

Ten former Telstar players are on the 20-member Gould team. Besides Chapman, they include freshmen Jenny Wheeler and Shawna Roderick; sophomores Laurie Young, Betsey Kuzyk, Marcy LaVallee, and Laurie Young; juniors Meredith Mason and Kate Graham; and senior Amanda Sysko.

Gould coach Sue Gardner and assistant coach Robin Lee also credited the Telstar program.

"They know how to play the game," Lee said of the local girls.

Although Gould uses a slightly different playing system, the coaches said the girls are able to adjust quickly.

Lee said the former Telstar players make one sacrifice in coming to Gould.

"They're giving up a much more competitive program to come here," she said.

Gould is one of four teams in its league, although the school does play other schools as well.

Lee and Gardner hope an exceptionally strong showing this year could bring an invitation to the New England Prep School championship in November.

"We have the potential to get a bid to participate," said Lee.

Last year's team just missed out on such a bid.

Lee said this year's squad is as strong, if not stronger, than last season's.

"It's a bigger team, with more depth, but still young," she said.

Four players were lost to graduation, including local player Marie Lowell.

'Gould Academy Week' in Maine

Governor Angus King has declared that the week of Sept. 30 through Oct. 6 will be known as "Gould Academy Week" in the state of Maine.

In his proclamation, King acknowledged the generous gifts made by Muriel Park Mason '17 to the Academy and the school's importance in educating students from Maine and the nation. The proclamation will be read on Saturday, Sept. 30, in conjunction with Gould Academy's Alumni Weekend.

King will be unable to attend the dedication of the Park-Mason Alumni House, but a representative of the state will be at Gould to officially commence Gould Academy Week. (Weekend events, page four.)

Mechanic Street bids rejected

By MICHAEL DANIELS

The rebuilding of Mechanic and part of Summer streets has been set back until at least next year.

The Bethel selectmen Monday night rejected all three bids received for the project -- the final phase of Bethel's multi-year Inflow and Infiltration Removal Project.

The three bids, which ranged from $208,817 to $292,636, were all well above the amount the town's engineers had estimated the job would cost.

Town Manager Madeleine Henley attributed the disparity to the tight time frame into which the work has been pushed. Facing financial penalties if deadlines were not met, she said, contractors were forced to build into their bids extra money for overtime and the possible penalty costs.

The selectmen went along with her recommendation that the bids be rejected, but they also instructed her to negotiate with the lowest bidder, Scott Construction Co., to attempt to bring the bid figure closer to the town's estimate.

To get the figure down, the town will probably agree to push the work back into the next construction season, although some might still start this year.

Knowing residents would complain if the road were under repair during the winter, the selectmen said they preferred that the project not be started until next year.

"The road will be a bloody mess if we start now, then put finishing it off to spring," said John Thurston.

But allowing a contractor to begin this season (and put a temporary surface over the road during the winter) could be a bargaining point

Umbagog refuge hailed as cooperative effort

But results on Maine's side of the lake are notably lacking

By MICHAEL DANIELS

They came to praise Umbagog, but also to chide Maine -- for its lack of progress in protecting the miles of waterfront on our side of the state line.

Nearly 30 years of conservation efforts were celebrated Saturday with the formal dedication of the Lake Umbagog National Wildlife Refuge.

Three-hundred and fifty people showed up for the dedication, held under a tent at the Potter Farm in Errol.

The audience listened as a dozen speakers praised the cooperative effort that went into the creation of the nation's 495th national wildlife refuge.

Brad Wyman, Wood Department manager for Crown Vantage (formerly Jame River Corp.) admitted that his company had initially responded to the refuge concept

'The people of New Hampshire feel they've done their share. The state of Maine has to start pulling its freight.'

PAUL BOFINGER
President,

Society for the Protection of N.H. Forests

"with some trepidation." But now, he said, "We feel we've got a partnership going, as well as quite a lot of friendship."

The Lake Umbagog refuge now protects more than 4,000 acres of environmentally sensitive land around the lake and the rivers feeding into it.

The protection is in the form of either conservation easements obtained from large landowners or of outright purchases by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Department, the state of New Hampshire, or the Society for the Preservation of New Hampshire Forests (see map, page 2).

But the state of Maine, which has nearly as much frontage on Lake Umbagog as does the Granite State, has yet to protect an acre of it, either by easement or fee purchase. (The federal fish and wildlife service has purchased 1,075 acres of refuge land in Maine.)

Paul Bofinger, president of the Society to Protect New Hampshire Forest, was one of Saturday's speakers, as was Bucky Owen, commissioner of the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife.

Bofinger pointed to the sharp disparity in results on either side of the state line. Speaking directly to Owen, Bofinger challenged him to spread the word in Augusta that: "The people of New Hampshire feel they've done their share. The state of Maine has to start pulling its freight."

Savage criticizes code enforcement

By ALISON ALOISIO

Developer Rick Savage thinks Norm Putnam is too zealous in enforcing Greenwood (and Bethel's) town codes.

Savage vented his frustration over the CEO at last week's Greenwood selectmen's meeting.

At issue was a Sept. 9 letter Putnam sent him concerning the road in Savage's nine-lot Oak Hill Estates subdivision off the Rowe Hill Road. In the letter Putnam cited a number of requirements of the subdivision ordinance which have not yet been met.

But Savage said Putnam went too far.

"Norm Putnam has a lot of concerns that don't concern me. I've had problems with Norm Putnam before. Now I'm trying to deal with the town. I'm fed up with this," he said.

Savage's subdivision was approved early this summer. The ordinance allows two years for the road to be completed, but selectmen recently asked Putnam to review the work.

Chair Marie Bartlett said fire department officials were worried about the radius of a turnaround in the project. She said they had received word that Savage was planning to sell lots in the near future. The ordinance requires that roads be brought up to subdivision specifications before lots can be sold.

Savage said he was within three weeks of having the road in compliance.

Although Bartlett said fixing the road within that time frame should settle the issue, Savage said his anger went beyond that.

"I'm willing to come into compliance. But I felt from that letter that I was being threatened by Norm Putnam," he said.

Savage didn't elaborate on why he felt threatened.

Big Bob's discussed

Savage told selectmen he had had problems with Putnam relating to the Big Bob's store construction in Bethel, where Putnam is also CEO. Savage said Putnam had cited numerous issues regarding the project, "but in the end all I had to change was one sign."

Savage also said that Putnam questioned the amount of light emitted by Big Bob's signs, in response to a complaint. But Savage said a light meter test revealed the illumination was at acceptable levels.

"What's got me more wound up is that I've put up with things in the past," he said.

Selectmen and Planning Board chairman Al Curtis defended Putnam's work, saying he does a good job and only acts at the request of town officials.

PERCUSSION PRACTICE
Work on the Bethel Gazebo will be wrapping up shortly. Here, volunteers Kevin McMahon and Monika Burk bang out a crescendo on the concrete base of the structure. The New Black Eagle Jazz Band will highlight dedication ceremonies for the gazebo on Sunday, Oct. 1. The event also commemorates the 100th anniversary of the Bethel Citizen. The Black Eagle Jazz Band, of Marblehead, Mass., is known for its large and diverse repertoire, and the soulful quality of its music. New York Times critic John S. Wilson said the band is "so far ahead of other traditional bands...there is scarcely any basis for comparison." The public is invited to the dedication, which begins at 3 p.m. on the town common. Birthday cake, coffee, and cider will be served. In case of inclement weather, please call 1-800-9BC-NEWS.

ORONO--Three in the next decade, recently as 1960, will be in a state of famine, says a study by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The study, titled "The Impact of a Global Disruption of Food Production," says that in 20 to 30 years, because of the depletion of food resources, the poorest parts of the world will see a "catastrophic" food production, says the study. NEWRY--Selectmen are waiting for word from the Maine Municipal Association regarding a possible hearing on planned improvements to the intersection of the Sunday River and Skiway Access roads. The state plans to move the stop sign currently at the end of the Access Road to the southbound lane of the Sunday River Road, because of the greater traffic volume at the Skiway, according to MDOT engineer Norm Haggan. And for safety reasons, a curve near the end of the Access Road would be made more gradual. The change was recommended by the state in 1990, when the Summit Hotel and Powder Ridge projects were proposed. The $70,000 price tag for the work will be shared 50/50 by the state and Sunday River Ski Resort. The work will be done by state crews, with help from local contractor Leon Poland. Haggan said Sunday River would like to have the intersection ready for this ski season. The Sunday River Road is a town road maintained by the state, except for plowing, which is done by Newry. "It's not a local issue -- it's a state issue," Haggan said last week. But town administrative assistant Sylvia Gray said there is some question whether a hearing should be held.

GREENWOOD--The Greenwood-Woodstock Solid Waste Committee is trying to stop people from throwing trash over the transfer station fence after hours and from raiding the swap shop for items to sell in yard sales, Greenwood selectmen chair Marie Bartlett said a woman had thrown trash over the fence twice in two days. Another woman was continuing to take many items from the swap shop. "She's pillaging the swap shop for her lawn sales," said selectman Carl Curtis. The woman received a letter from selectmen asking her to stop. But, Bartlett said, "she says she's a taxpayer and can do what she wants." Thursday the Solid Waste Committee decided to send their own letters to both women. Bartlett said the trash-dumping may carry a $200 fine and the loss of the privilege to use the transfer station. Selectmen did not disclose the women's names, although Bartlett said the one dumping trash was new to the area.

NEWRY--Selectmen agreed last week to pursue a meeting of representatives from all five SAD44 towns to discuss using the same professional assessor. Assessments paid by Newry, Bethel, Andover, Greenwood and Woodstock are based on their individual state valuations, while property taxes are based on local valuations set by the town's selectmen or agents. Chairman Steve Wight said he felt all district towns "should be assessed by the same pair of eyes." The selectmen said Newry's valuations creeps closer each year to Bethel's. At the same meeting it was announced the Recreation Committee is planning a cleanup day and recycling program Oct. 7, and potluck supper and Maine French Fiddlers Show Oct. 14 at the Bear River Grange Hall.

AUGUSTA--New signs to help landowners alert hunters that a dwelling is nearby are now available free of charge from the Dept. of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife. Part of the department's landowner relations program, the "Safety Zone" signs are intended for use by people who live adjacent to wooded tracts where hunters might not realize a home is in the area. The signs will be issued only in sufficient quantity to post woods within 100 yards of the dwelling -- the area where the unauthorized discharge of a firearm is illegal. Reduced visibility in the woods can lead a hunter to stray closer than 100 yards without knowing it. Homeowners are advised to post signs as close to 100 yards from their home as possible, and at intervals so a hunter would be likely to see one while approaching through the woods. The signs may be picked up at an IF&W office in Gray or Augusta.

PORTLAND--A state agency has signed a labor agreement necessary to free up $36.6 million from the federal government to restore passenger train service from Boston to Portland. The labor accord makes the Northern New England Rail Authority responsible for financial hardship caused by competition between the public train service and private bus operations. There are still five agreements that need to be completed before the project can go forward, but they are expected to be done by mid-November, according to Michael Murray, the MDOT director for the project. Trains could start running by late next year, after track upgrades are done. A train ride from Portland to Boston will likely cost about $20.

AUGUSTA--Maine's vast forest resource, covering 89 percent of the state's land area, is a "net sink," absorbing carbon dioxide, a greenhouse gas. Sustainable management of these forest resources will be beneficial and will potentially enhance the forest's capacity to trap carbon dioxide, according to estimates in a newly released inventory. The report was prepared by the Maine State Planning Office and the University of Maine's Margaret Chase Smith Center for Public Policy. The inventory provides a statewide breakdown identifying volume and source of various greenhouse gases originating in Maine, including carbon dioxide, methane, nitrous oxide, ozone, and chlorofluorocarbons. The report indicates that the state releases about 16 tons of greenhouse gases per person per year compared to a national average of 21 tons. The gases contribute to global warming by increasing the heat-trapping properties of the atmosphere. In Maine, energy use accounts for the largest share of gas emissions, followed by waste management, agriculture and industrial processes. Land use, primarily forest harvesting and regrowth, produces a net reduction in gas emissions. Compared to national averages, Maine releases less gas from energy production but more from transportation and residential wood burning.

AUGUSTA--Qualified Maine families will have an opportunity to buy a home with almost no down payment, thanks to a new Maine State Housing Authority program. Known as the "Down Home" program, it will allow as many as 300 families to buy a home with as little as $750 in up-front costs. Governor Angus King said in announcing the program last week that it is a good opportunity for working families that have the income to afford a mortgage, but have not been able to save enough money for the down payment. Down Home links the reduced down payment with MSHA's already reduced interest rates for first-time homebuyers. The current interest rate is 6.95. Borrowers using the program must meet regular program guidelines and have incomes that are 70 percent or less of the area median income. The loans will be made on a first-come, first-served basis and will be available until the $1 million set aside for the program has been spent. For more information call MSHA (1-800-452-4668).

ORONO--Three billion young people will enter their reproductive years in the next decade -- equivalent to the entire world's population as recently as 1960, said Werner Fornos, president of the Population Institute in a lecture last week. "How they handle the awesome responsibility of raising families will determine whether population stabilizes or we see a global disaster where overpopulation, global warming, ozone depletion, and deforestation become the four horsemen of the 21st century apocalypse," he said. He said most of the growth is occurring in the poorest parts of the world. "Even if these nations are able to double their food production, health facilities, job opportunities, and all basic services in 20 to 30 years, their quality of life would be no better than it is today because their populations would double in the same amount of time," Fornos said. Despite the ominous signs, Fornos noted that in countries where there is a motivation for smaller family size along with government commitment, there is a reduction in fertility. In Thailand, for example, a 67-percent reduction in fertility has been realized since 1960 because of a strong government commitment to education about family planning.

pointed to Maine's lack of results. An earlier speaker had described a mirage on the lake that appeared to her to be the falling-off point at "the end of the world." But Fair got a laugh from the audience when he quipped, "That wasn't the end of the world -- it was the state line."

Owen replied in part by pleading poverty, noting that he came from that very poor state of Maine.

But the audience applauded when Owen said he hoped to be able soon to announce an agreement for protecting a crucial corridor of land along the Rapid River, but he made no mention of any plans to protect the shoreline.

One of the original proposals for the Lake Umbagog refuge called for the Land For Maine's Future Board to purchase not only the Rapid River land, but also the land (including lakeshore) between there and the Dead Cambridge River.

But that ambitious plan fell through, Owen said, in part because LMF's valuations for the land were $3 to $5 million lower than those of the timber companies that currently own it (Crown Vantage and Seven Islands Land Company).

"So they decided to focus their efforts on the Rapid River," Owen said.

Most of the $35 million voters authorized for the LMF in 1987 is now long since gone -- spent on other purchases include more than 61,000 acres of land and 139 miles of waterfront. In the 1990s, voters turned down two attempts to raise more money for land purchases.

Some observers also note that with 3,500 miles of coastline (or twice that, depending on how it's measured), Maine had to spread its conservation funds far more broadly than New Hampshire, which was able to make Lake Umbagog its highest priority.

"That's their gem," said Cathy Johnson of the Natural Resources Council of Maine.

While Maine, Owen said, has "a lot of lakes that mirror Umbagog."

Owen said later that he planned to propose that the state's Congressional delegation be asked to try to set aside some federal funds for land acquisitions on the Maine side of the refuge.

Other speakers at Saturday's dedication included Steve Breeser, refuge manager; Cathy Short, deputy regional director of the U.S.F. & W.S.; Fran Coffin, president of the Lake Umbagog Chamber of Commerce; Charles Bridges, chief of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife of the N.H. Fish and Game Department; Fred King, a N.H. state senator; and Ronald E. Lamberton, regional director of the U.S.F. & W.S.

Judd Gregg, one of New Hampshire's two U.S. senators sent a letter and regrets for not being able to attend, as did Rep. Charles Bass and former Sen. Warren Rudman.

A representative of U.S. Sen. Robert Smith's office was also scheduled to speak, but failed to show up.

Breeser told the crowd he thought she might be lost. "She's probably never been up here by road," he said.

No one from Maine's Congressional delegation participated in Saturday's ceremonies. Both senators and both representatives had been invited, Breeser said.

Art show to kick off Gould Alumni Weekend

A reception Friday, Sept. 29, for alumni celebrating their 25th reunion and a viewing of the "200 Years of Bethel Art and Artists" art show in the James B. Owen Gallery mark the beginning of this year's Alumni Weekend at Gould Academy.

One of the most exciting events at Reunion '95 will be the dedication of the Park-Mason Alumni House on Church Street.

Last year the late Muriel Park Mason, Gould Academy's valedictorian of 1917, bequeathed her home in Bethel to the Academy along with a $5 million cash gift and 36 acres of property adjacent to Gould's Nordic ski trails. The Academy recently remodeled the home which now houses the alumni, development, and business offices, a conference room, and a gathering room for visiting alumni.

Margaret Joy Tibbetts '37, former ambassador to Norway, Sarah Gartrell '64, president of the Alumni Board, and Headmaster Bill Clough will dedicate the building in honor of Mrs. Mason on Saturday, Sept. 30, at 1:45 p.m. at the Park-Mason House.

Alumni will have the opportunity to view another addition to Gould's physical plant, the Gould Academy/Sunday River Competition Center at Sunday River Ski Resort. Director of Skiing Tim LaVallee will give a personal tour of the 5,500-square-foot facility at 2:30 p.m. on Saturday.

Alumni may also participate in a wide range of activities on Saturday ranging from a run through the pines to a reunion feast. The 2nd Annual Frank Vogt Fun Run begins at 9 a.m. on Alumni Field. Named in honor of longtime English instructor and running coach Frank Vogt of Bethel, the 3.5-mile jog takes runners over Gould's ski trails. Also at 9 a.m. Dr. Harry "Dutch" Dresser will guide alumni through cyberspace during a tour of Gould's state of the art computer network in Hanscom Hall.

Special awards will be presented to faculty and alumni at the Awards Ceremony at 10:45 a.m. in Bingham Auditorium. The Parade of Classes at noon leads alumni to Farnsworth Field House for a luncheon and class photos. Following the dedication of the Park-Mason Alumni House, Bethel's own Stan Howe '62 will present "Gould Through the Years" at the Bethel Historical Society's Moses Mason House at 2:30 p.m. Gould Academy's field hockey and soccer teams will be in action all afternoon playing home games against Hyde School and Proctor Academy.

Alumni can catch up with old friends at the wine and cheese reception under the tent at the Alumni House at 5 p.m. At 6 p.m. the class of 1945 will gather at the Alumni House for their 50th Reunion Dinner while the other classes will dine by candlelight at the annual alumni banquet in Gehring Dining Hall.

On Sunday, adventuresome souls can hike "The Roost" in Evans Notch with faculty member and outdoor expert Lorenzo Baker or paddle the Androscoggin and enjoy the foliage with faculty member and licensed Maine forester Alan Burnell. Both trips depart from the bell tower at 10 a.m. Brunch is served in the Gehring Dining Hall from 10 a.m. until noon.

Questions regarding Alumni Weekend can be directed to Fran Bernier, director of alumni relations, at 824-7707.

Approval sought for revived Mt. Abram subdivision plan

By ALISON ALOISIO

A partner in a long-dormant Howe Hill subdivision proposal wants the town of Greenwood to either reapprove the proposal or to return some of the taxes it has been collecting on the parcel.

The town Planning Board, for its part, wants to see more information before deciding whether to approve the plan.

And the state Department of Environmental Protection says the original subdivision plan was created in violation of state law. DEP recommended the subdivision be taken off the town's books and resubmitted.

Following that recommendation, Tom Kennison of Mt. Abram Inc. refuted the 1990 Westside II proposal at last Monday's board meeting.

He asked the board to sign off on the plan, according to chairman Al Curtis. But the board refused Kennison's request, saying more information was needed.

At last Tuesday's selectmen's meeting, Curtis discussed the issue with selectmen. While none of the parties questioned the need to refile the application, Curtis was looking to the selectmen for guidance on dealing with problems surrounding the resubmitted proposal.

He told them that after the Planning Board turned down the sign-off request, Kennison said he might ask for a tax abatement.

"He said he had been paying taxes on it as a subdivision all along," Curtis said.

Curtis also said he had taken the board members' concerns to A.V. COG lawyer John Maloney, who outlined several items he said needed research before approval could again be given.

Maloney's primary concerns, according to Curtis, were that Mt. Abram Inc. show proof that it has title to the land and demonstrate the financial capacity to finish the project. Maloney also recommended the board get assurance the road through the property will be finished to subdivision ordinance specifications.

The title issue arose from an agreement between DJ Construction Company (owned by James Cyr) and Mt. Abram's previous owners. That agreement proposed to transfer the Westside II land from Mt. Abram to DJ if the construction company could sell at least $400,000 worth of lots by Feb. 28, 1993.

That did not happen, resulting in the DEP opinion that the subdivision violated Maine Site Law. But Curtis said that although DJ Construction never owned the land, the lots were in the company's name.

Selectmen chair Marie Bartlett agreed the Planning Board should insist on more information.

"They could be applying for a subdivision on somebody else's land," she said.

Curtis said the board would also likely ask for $100,000 worth of proof, whether in the form of a performance bond or other financial capability statement, that Mt. Abram Inc. can finish the project, particularly the road.

"Otherwise, it could come back onto the town to build it, if we don't address it," he said.

Bartlett proposed that the application process should begin anew.

"I say start all over fresh, with the paperwork," she said, "but don't charge the fees again."

Curtis said he would make that recommendation to the board.

Kennison's view

Kennison said Thursday he will provide all the information requested by the Planning Board. He said he is optimistic the issue will be resolved.

"I don't believe the taxes will be an issue. I think it will be settled," he said.

Code Criticism

"His concerns are our concerns," Curtis said.

While Putnam's letter to Savage was not discussed in detail at the meeting, Putnam provided a copy to the Citizen the next day.

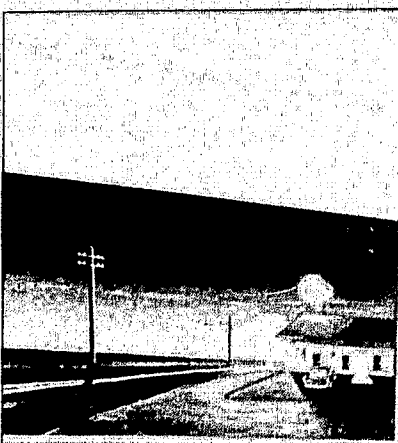

It points out aspects of the road still needing work, including width, culverts, the turnaround, and soil erosion prevention.

The letter concludes, "In reviewing the application and the minutes I find no record of a waiver by the Planning Board of a performance bond. I understand that generally this has not been required, but instead that under Section VIII.H.4, no lot may be sold and no permit shall be issued for the construction of any building on any lot until all improvements have been made. A copy of this letter will be sent to the Planning Board so that they will be aware of the work that has not been completed in this subdivision. After you receive this letter and review its contents, I would be very glad to meet with you and visit the site to point out my concerns."

"Everyone follows the rules"

Asked about his general philosophy in dealing with code enforcement, Putnam said he uses the approach that "everyone follows the rules, but I help where I can, by explaining or setting up a time schedule. I try to help people find ways to meet the requirements and still accomplish what they want to," he said.

Of reactions like Savage's, Putnam said, "It goes with the job."

Handicapped ski volunteers needed

Maine Handicapped Skiing (MHS), located at Sunday River Ski Resort, is seeking adventurous individuals who love skiing to volunteer for their program. MHS is a non-profit organization that teaches children and adults with physical disabilities how to downhill and cross-country ski. The program is provided at no cost to the student.

Volunteer instructors are trained by experienced staff members to teach weekday ski lessons. Volunteers must be 18 years old and must have at least an intermediate level of skiing ability. Volunteers are also needed as snowmobile drivers, office helpers and supervisors. Training clinics are conducted through November and December and the program continues through March.

Anyone interested in becoming involved with MHS is asked to contact Marguerite Graham, MHS Volunteer Coordinator, RR2 Box 1971, Bethel, ME 04217 (824-2440) or 1-800-639-7770.

Senior is allowed to attend school part-time

By ALISON ALOISIO

In a last-ditch effort to keep potential dropouts in school, Telstar High School will allow them to attend part-time -- putting in just enough hours to complete the minimum graduation requirements.

The move came partly in response to the loss of eight students who dropped out in the first three weeks of school.

While the district has had a proposal for a formal alternative education program for such students for several years, funding has not been available.

When yet another student (a senior) came to Davis recently intending to leave school, Davis and assistant principal Carroll Higgins decided to make one last effort to get him to stay. They described their plan to the School Board Monday night.

The administrators drew up a contract that would let the boy come in for the required classes only -- giving him his final 2.25 credits toward graduation. Twenty total credits are needed.

It was signed by the student, his parents, a counselor, and Davis.

Davis said the boy and his mother were pleased with the plan.

"She (the mother) thought that we could save some other students like her son with it," Davis said.

Davis said there were some concerns among high school staff that the contract idea would "mushroom," with other students wanting to opt for the shorter school day.

"But we have safeguards -- this is a last resort effort to save these kids," Davis said.

There are nine guidelines for participation in the contract program. They include: a professional recommendation from a counselor, doctor, etc.; consensus of school personnel that educational needs are not being met; and documented evidence of behavioral, academic and/or attendance difficulties, as well as documented evidence of efforts to resolve those difficulties.

Some school directors worried the program might send the wrong message to students.

"It takes away the personal recognition of the students ... it's not realistic for them to do just the bare minimum," said T.L. Magee of Woodstock.

Fran Head of Bethel said the students might expect the same special treatment once they graduated and went to work.

But Higgins said, "We won't have these students at all unless we do something like this."

Greenwood director Brad Payne agreed.

"It's not perfect, but it's a lot better than what we've got," he said.

Other business

The board voted down an agenda item requested by Woodstock director Margaret Hand to fund an educational technician position for the Woodstock Elementary School second grade. The class has 24 students -- above the number recommended by district guidelines.

Superintendent Ron Jenkins said that while conditions in the class were not ideal, there was no money to fund the position, and there were other areas of equal need throughout the district.

"Those would have to be weighed, too," he said.

Hand said she realized the position couldn't be funded, but wanted to point up the overcrowding at the school.

The board also accepted a proposal from Brooks Bros., Inc. to supply fuel oil and kerosene for the district for the school year.

Staff appointments included April Jo Cook as a high school science teacher and Bonnie Marston as an educational technician for a special needs student at the middle school.

A student attendance policy modified to accommodate scheduling changes at Telstar was also approved.

Higgins also described the activities of the "Chance for Change" committee, comprised of students, school staff, and community members. The committee is a forum for discussion and resolution of "problems that prevent Telstar High School from being a great school or a problem that prevents a person from doing his or her best."

New Newry director David Langlois joined the board Monday. He replaces Martin Hinkle, who resigned earlier this month.

Absent from Monday's meeting were Bethel directors Merton Brown and Debra Dohrmann, and Newry director Debbie Gilbert.

Greenwood City

by Colista Morgan

This morning the chill of September's night carried over into daylight. The air was crisp and invigorating. I went for a walk just to breathe the freshness.

Near the edge of the road I lifted a stone just to see what was beneath it. There were ants that scurried every which way, a cricket that jumped toward the grass and one old fat slug that just stayed still. He was too lazy to stir. I'm sure it wished the rock would again fall into place.

I found burs ripening. In places there were many kinds. If I had walked among them I would have been busy plucking them from my clothes. I had no desire to go through them.

Everywhere along the way there were familiar things. I enjoyed the Christmas ferns which remain green all winter.

On higher land I could see the soft blue haze hovering over the fields.

There was the scene of coming glory of autumn.

With this loveliness and peace resting over all the valley, it was hard to believe there is so much trouble in all the world.

On Sunday, the 17th, Leonas became a year older. The family was together to celebrate with him and wish him a Happy Birthday.

Gerald Stevens is visiting in town. I'm looking forward to seeing him. He was one of "my boys" who was a student in my school room. I'd like to see them all together again.

I attended Oxford Retired Teachers in Norway on Saturday with Lettie Brooks and Louvie Coffin. There were 48 teachers at this interesting meeting.

Louise DiArenzo is visiting her mother, Zilpha DiArenzo.

30 and Oct. 1, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., at the Grange Hall. There will be an assortment of things to sell and tables may be brought in to display your own things. Coffee and muffins, and lunch will be sold by the Grange. The next meeting will be Scrambled Officers Night on Oct. 3. Lucy Cox is a patient at the Norway Convalescent Home.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Lee Billings and to the family of Debbie Foster-Cantelo.

The Woodstock-Greenwood Senior Citizens will meet at Teena's Restaurant on Thursday, Oct. 5, for their meeting and dinner.

Judith Grover Tent 17 DUV will meet Monday, Oct. 9, for joint inspection with Norway and East Stoneham. There will be a 6 p.m. supper and silent auction.

The Historical Society meets on the second Saturday of each month. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wardwell called on her sister Beatrice Farnum recently.

Recent callers at Mr. and Mrs. Harris Hathaway's were: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Schurr, Debbie Millett, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Jordan and Ashley, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Estes and family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jordan, Jr. and family.

Bobby Hoyt called on his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hoyt and grandmother, Beatrice Farnum last Thursday.

Bertha Benoit called at the Ken Hoyt's last Thursday.

Curator Larry Billings has given a book on antiques and a tin illustrating Disney's "Little Mermaid" to the Historical Society. The museum now has many volumes on antiques and a fine collection of tins. The society is getting organized for the coming year. Dues should be paid soon, and new members are encouraged to join. Historical members do their best to offer activities and programs that benefit the town and area. They try to preserve our heritage.

On Sept. 3, Jennifer Cross celebrated her 5th birthday. She would like to extend a big thank you to all her friends and family. Jimmy Gibson, Bryce Walker, Emily Holden and brother Jeremy, Michaela and Abbie Cummings, Amber Sumner, Chelsea Bean, Crystal Herrick, and Kelsey Gamble all attended the party at McDonald's on the 2nd.

She also celebrated with a family cookout and cake and ice cream with Grampa Norton and Grammy Phyllis, Aunt Lainey Cross, Aunt T.T., Uncle Donny, Nathan, Bryce and Nicena Walker, Stanley Walker, Mammy Ruby Coolidge, Great-Grampa Jason and Great-Grammie Phyllis Smith.

The Newry Community Church Ladies Circle will meet Monday at 12:30 p.m. at Freda Robertson's residence.

Nine members of the "Newry Bowling Gang" went to Oxford Lanes one day last week -- Karlene Bachelder, Betsy Clark, Gil Seeley, Louise Tetley, Bea Lowell, Doris Parent, Irene Hadfield, Olive Anderson and Sylvia Wight. On the overall scores, Betsy and Karlene tied for the triples, but Karlene was high on the singles, beating Betsy by eight pins. Of the "Righties," Louise was high on the triples, beating Doris by six pins. She also was high on the singles, beating Doris by six pins. Karlene had two spares and Betsy had one spare.

We have put out our birdfeeder this past week. This is a little early for us as we usually do it when snow flies. We saw several chickadees on the feeder, so decided it was time. Many different kinds are eating up the seeds we have put out. It's really enjoyable to watch the birds and squirrels.

Rosalie Poland and Lani Bertrum took Claribel Poland on a shopping spree in Lewiston. Claribel said they bought her several items, all clothes. Claribel also told me she'd given away one of the new batch of kittens.

Lani and Bert Bertrum are visiting her parents, Leon and Rosalie Poland, and family for a few days. Lani and Bert went to the coast one day recently. They will be leaving Monday for their home in Florida.

Larry and Pam Poland's new mobile home is all set up and they're living in it and really enjoy the extra space.

Ricky and Lisa Mack, along with Vicky and Ron Hill, will attend a Red Sox game in Boston this weekend. Ricky and Lisa's daughter Megan has a soccer game in Peru on Saturday, so her grandmother, Donna Koshiba will be taking her while her parents are gone. Another daughter, Randi Mack, celebrated her birthday in September.

Sympathy goes out to the family and friends of Lee Billings and Deborah Foster-Cantelo.

I was sorry to hear that the Locke Mills Grocery Store is closed. Many from this area are going to miss it.

I stopped by the agricultural office where I worked for 21 years to pay a short visit. Most of the office personnel had gone to a meeting in Bangor that day.

David Cox, who lives in his grandparents' home (the home of John and Jenny Cox), has had some work done including putting a basement under the building. The work is now just about complete.

Joan Poland is spending a week in Mobile, Ala., visiting her daughter JoAnna and granddaughter Amy Merrill.

Larry Billings, curator Woodstock Historical Society, reports that the society studies the people, places and events that shaped the history of our area. The society will sponsor a Thanksgiving basket in November. We should all take an interest in customs connected with such holidays as Halloween, Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Years. The Historical Society hopes you enjoy them this year.

At the annual meeting of the Historical Society in September, Mary Billings was elected president, Larry Billings as curator, and Annella Burnham as chairperson of the Board of Trustees. The museum is officially closed for the season.

Franklin Grange 124 met Monday night for Agriculture Night.

Business was discussed regarding selling items the Grange has received, water, etc. Bertha put on a good program as usual.

Margaret and Ralph Schurr from Central Iowa told about their farm (small by comparison to some, they said). They raised 300 acres of corn, 300 acres of soy beans and shipped over 1,000 hogs last year. Sounds large to me! Bertha had two quiz games on farming; the Grange Band played. There will be a sale on Sept.

Dear John Dun-
phy,

The quillow has been completed in your opted
color and style.

You have by now noticed the resemblance between the Grateful Dead logo and the face on the pillow cover? It was truly a challenging assignment, and I'm hopeful that you are pleased with the results. Open it up carefully and memorize each step as you go. Then you merely have to reverse the process to turn the "napping robe" back into a pillow, when you're finished with your cerebral time-out, and ready to attack the books once again.

While you are busily adapting to life as a college student, we here in the hinterland are bracing for changes in the climate, in the views, and in the schedules. The warm September days allow us to continue in cotton for the moment, but the coolish nights mean pajama bottoms, wood fires for some, and the threat of frost for the gardens. The crops are in for the most part, the apples are ready for picking and eating and selling, the pumpkins on the vine get a welcome cover on the frosty nights, the jellies and jams and preserves bubble on the stoves and steam up the kitchens.

Birds are crowding the wires along the Flat Road ... they seem to line up at this time each year in anticipation of some secret plan. Either that or there's a heck of a good show being repeated daily in the nearby field. The humming birds still flit from what's left of the blossoms to the man made nectar in the plastic feeders. They're here; then they're gone; and each year I miss the moment of departure. I wonder if anyone actually sees them leave as they start their southern trek that carries them thousands of miles away for their winter honey-doing.

Speaking of honey ... the other day, as I drove back from town, I had to slow down at a particular woody juncture of our Flat Road to allow a black bear to lumber across the road! It was the first time in all the years that we've been here that I saw one so close to home ... I half expected to see a couple of cubs, but this Ursa seemed to be traveling alone.

Traveling is something that we've done a lot of this summer ... not far actually ... just often, it seems. First it was to Watertown to move Muddy to her new location. At a later date we fit in another visit to your "cervica silvae", this time to "hip-hip-hooray" for Audrey and Wyman Johnson's fifty years of weddedness. Then it was off to Vermont to celebrate the wedding of Meg O'Donnell (our god child) and Mark Joyce. That was the neatest outdoor "do" that we've ever enjoyed. Great music, great food, great people, and the shores of Lake Champlain for a backdrop!

Once back on the terra nostra, your dear Uncle Donald and I crowded about our mere thirty-eight years together, in the company of your Aunt Gori and Uncle Jack, who were basking in the light that has recently appeared at the end of their twenty-eight-year-long tunnel. We did some fine dining together at our favorite Town and Country Restaurant, hoisting our glasses once for our good marital fortune, and another time for the generosity of Uncle Jack's "Pop" who insisted on picking up the tab ... in absentia, of course. A few days later, we joined in the applause for Linda Westleigh's parents, Ervil and Ruth Curtis, who celebrated their golden day in a golden way, and the very next week we did the same for our friends and fellow Canasta freaks, Arthur and Ruth Gilbert. There seems to be no end to the "cause" for "celebre". Last week we all managed to gather at the farm of our minister, another fine fellow named John, for what will probably be our last annual church picnic, at that farm, anyway. John must give up his ministering and focus on his own health. Meanwhile we search for a replacement and encourage John and Wendy to tend only to their own personal flock for a change ... that "flock", by the way includes many many sheep, many many dogs, many many cats, a daughter, a son-in-law, two grandsons, and one ormy goal!

And since change is the only thing that is constant, as they say, I say let us be prepared for it, embrace it, flow with it. Our small community effected an unusual form of change recently. The townspeople spoke out at a school budget hearing, bemoaned the burden that the burgeoning costs of education put on them, and called for a cutback in spending. As a result, the board reduced the budget, and in the process, certain areas suffered heavy blows. One area to feel the pain of excision is the library that serves both the middle and high school students ... Enter: the Friends of the Telstar Library.

When I stood up at that recent hearing and suggested that many of us in attendance had resources at our fingertips that could perhaps fill the void that would be created by the proposed cuts in funds, I had no idea where that idea would take me. But a few days later, Wende Gray called and said that she and Gwyneth Bohr would be meeting with Linda Blackman, the librarian with the badly wounded library, to form a "Friends of the Telstar Library" group, and was I interested. I was, and we met, and we now have real plans to help the library get updated and upgraded and even spruced up. Because we the people spoke up at the budget meeting, and said loudly ... "We can't afford the going price!" ... the funds that would have made wonderful new materials available to the students and to the community, are not available, for now. So we Friends are working out the details of how we can provide reasonable alternatives for what would have been the easier way. We will be campaigning for funds, for more friends, and for donations of goods and of time. We believe that there are ways to help the library and the students to thrive with the help of people in the community who have the time and the will to serve.

Linda and I dropped in on the senior citizens who were gathered at the Locke Mills town building the other day. They were there for their monthly dinner and entertainment by local storyteller and troubadour, Joe Perham. We told them of our plan, and asked them to consider helping us to implement it. We suggested that they might like to offer a few hours a week, come alone or in small groups, and really make a dent in the growing stacks (pardon the pun) of unfinished business. We will also work out the logistics of transportation for those who don't have their own, so that traveling to and fro won't be a hindrance.

We "Friends" will be glad to hear from any new friends who would be inclined to help. Yes, dear nephew, son of my favorite and only brother, you too could help. Perchance you have a day or two this winter, with a break in your classes, and a need to wend north ... feel free to call. We can catalogue tomes together if you like ... sort of a busman's holiday, to a library of your choice?

The lesson contained in this pattern is simple but profound. We can make a difference. We shouted out for a change ... we got the change. We said that we could help ... now we begin to prove it. In small doses, with basic talents, and in simple fashion, we can provide the force that is needed to assist our students, as they prepare for the world that beckons them. It's humbling and yet exhilarating to know that one person's contribution really counts.

Enjoy the quillow dear fellow. Sorry that I couldn't work yellow into it somehow, but it didn't seem right. Learn your lessons well, and since Uncle Henry's gone, you'll have to turn to me, I guess, whenever you need an oracle or some such dispenser of wisdom. I am also the most humble ... Hugs to all Nevilles ... slave off the ennu ... Love, C.B.

Howdy, folks.
Monday morning is here again and it's time for me to let you all know what

we've been doing for the last week. Last Monday morning we had just a slight touch of frost that ticked the cucumber and squash leaves. I gathered what I had that were appropriate for the West Paris Grange exhibit at Oxford County Fair.

Our visitors in the afternoon were Ralph and Margaret Schnur from Colo, Iowa. She is the former Margaret Howe, and they have been in Maine visiting relatives and friends. We didn't know they were in Maine and were surprised when they called on us. The sad part was that we were supposed to have our donations to the West Paris Grange exhibit at the hall by 4 p.m., so we had to call our visit with them to a halt earlier than we wished.

We stayed at the fair until the exhibit was completed, as Peggy volunteered to write out the tickets that were attached to each kind of vegetable and also on other items. West Paris Grange got second prize, so we thought we did quite well.

I started a project last Tuesday forenoon that should have been done many years ago. One of the out-buildings had a doorway but had never had a real door since long be-

NOTICE to WOODS JOBBERS and CONTRACTORS

For the first time in several years the woods business has slowed. A lower level of sales may make it difficult to meet equipment payments contracted for when sales were high.

The finance companies are, at times, unable to refinance your equipment to reduce your payments. Some of you have several payments that can be better handled on a consolidated basis. Again, if you have loans at different equipment finance companies, they may not be able to consider consolidating your payments.

If you think some relief from high debt service would help your company, our woods oriented commercial lenders would like to talk to you.

fore I moved here nearly 12 years ago. I have always put up with the conglomeration that was there to close the doorway, and finally I decided that it was time to put a door onto the building that could be opened and closed quite easily, so I started the project.

Thursday afternoon, we attended the seniors' day at Oxford County Fair. We listened to a lot of good music by The Parisiens and Peggy did quite a lot of dancing, but didn't get any prize. We helped the Norway Firemen by eating some of their nice fish chowder with crackers.

We picked up Bertha Benoit at the home of Carl and Lettie Brooks on Friday morning and all went to Franklin Grange Hall in Bryant Pond to do some work there. Some kind of sale will be held in the future to dispose of items there that are not needed by the Grange.

We had quite a hard frost when we woke up Saturday morning, but we had covered several vegetables so the frost didn't do us much harm.

Peggy had to scrape the windshield of her car before she and Jackie Stevens could leave to attend the C.W.A. area meeting at the Maine State Grange Home in Augusta. Items that are entered in the different C.W.A. contests are on display at this meeting and prizes are awarded. Peggy had started ear-

THE CRESCENT PARK SCHOOL LIBRARY, which lost its librarian to school budget cuts, got some help with cataloging last week from Key Bank employees. The employees worked in the library Wednesday. ly, so when they got down to Winthrop they stopped to visit Beatrice Felt. Linwood, better known as "Tink," was down in his garden so they didn't see him. Beatrice seems to be gaining all the time and is now able to do a little light housework. She still wears a body cast during the day but can remove it at night.

Peggy attended the dance at West Paris Grange Hall on Saturday evening.

Yesterday, we attended a family reunion at brother Bryce's home on the Sunday River Road in Newry. The weather wasn't cooperative for our meeting outside, so we met in their nice basement room, which is nicely finished and includes nearly the whole basement. Due to the weather our attendance was small, with 34 attending, but we all had a real good time.

After Peggy and I had gone to bed last evening the telephone rang. It was her daughter Myrna calling from their winter home in Mesa, Ariz. They had driven over 1,000 miles each day since leaving early Friday morning.

Callers at the Lovejoy home Thursday were Clarence Faulkner of Hebron and Neil Mills from West Paris.

On Saturday, Mary Lovejoy and her two daughters, Faith and Hope, picked up Jennie Haverinen in South Paris and all went to Poland Spring to attend the State of Maine Building and see its many exhibits. Mary says it costs $1 to go in but is something we all should see.

The Finnish American Heritage Society of West Paris will put on a baked ham public supper on Oct. 7 from 5 to 6:30 p.m. I do not know the price of admission, but I'm sure the supper will be delicious.

Also, at 8 p.m. on Oct. 7, there will be a dance at West Paris Grange Hall with music by the Richard Felt Orchestra. Why not make it a twosome with a nice ham supper and then an evening of dancing?

WINDY VALLEYS SNOWMOBILE CLUB

The first meeting of the 1995-96 season was held on Tuesday, Sept. 5. Memberships for the new season were taken care of before the meeting began. The following officers were elected for the season: president, Owen Wight; vice president, Leon Dunn; treasurer, Robert Lowell; secretary, Sylvia Harrington; Maine Snowmobile director, Sylvia Wight, with Bill Wight the alternate director; trail master, Leon Dunn; and safety officer, Don Gray. Meetings will be held the first Tuesday of each month at 7 p.m. at the Newry Town Hall (September through June).

The October meeting will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 3. New members are welcome. For more information call Owen at 824-2620 or Bill at 824-2262.

OXFORD COUNTY GOP

Oxford County Republicans will gather in Bryant Pond for their October monthly meeting, which will be held at the Franklin Grange Hall on Route 26, beginning with a 5:30 p.m. social hour, 6:30 p.m. supper ($5 per person), followed by business meeting and speaker Paul Young, who will be making the case for president of the United States for Sen. Phil Gramm (R-Texas). The meeting will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 10, and is open to all registered and interested Republicans. Those wishing further details should call Rev. Roland Lord, Woodstock Town Republican chairman (665-2026), Evelyn Bean (665-2979) or Stan Howe, Oxford County Republican chairman (824-2291).

Bicentennial Committee notes:

The next meeting of the Bethel Bicentennial Committee will be Sunday, Oct. 1, at 7 p.m. at the home of Dr. Stanley Howe on Broad Street. All interested residents are invited to attend.

Among the various projects now in development are the art exhibit currently displayed at Gould Academy's Owen Art Gallery, the photographic bicentennial calendar project, the Transportation and Mail exhibit at Bethel Station, and several fundraising initiatives being planned by the fundraising committee.

The goal of the committee-at-large is to make the bicentennial celebration a series of year-long events and observations. Residents are very welcomed to investigate the proposed initiatives and participate on those which interest them in particular or to propose their own initiatives.

THOUGHTS FROM THE Pastor's Study

The Bethel Area Clergy Association, with the help of pastors of surrounding churches, brings you these meditations. Not based on any set theme, they will be individual for each pastor. It is hoped you will find in these words comfort and hope for your daily life.

In recent reading from a daily devotional magazine, the author spoke out in regard to a parishioner's going to a church service, and upon leaving the service complaining about some aspect of the service that displeased him. Perhaps the sermon, or the music, scriptures or any one of the numerous faults one might find. And perhaps truly justified.

But the author indicated that the complainer did not find or at least comment on any good he had found with the service.

He compared this situation to where someone enters a large shopping mall, where thousands of articles are offered for shoppers to buy, but when the shopper left he carried out only one article, and that, a 99-cent article.

The reason? He got only what he came to get.

This is oft-times a wise move on the part of the shopper, but if you go to a church service expecting to get little, that can well be what you will get. But if you come looking for a good deal, you can oft-times find that.

This reminds me of a story a minister once told at his service.

There was a father, mother and a small son who went to church. They gave the boy a nickel to put in the collection plate. As they left the church, they started picking the service apart, and finding fault. All of a sudden the little boy speaks up and says "pretty good show for a nickel."

I do not write this so much as to relate to church (but I do think we should go, expecting to receive something of value to us). The point I would like to make is that this is true of life as a whole. We start each day expecting little satisfaction or pleasure from it, and that is well apt to be the kind of day we will have. Our attitude on life can well be influenced by our own selves. Accept troubles along with pleasure, living one day at a time but live that day in preparation for tomorrow. Not in a way of worry but in a way of security. Remembering Christ's words "lay up not for yourselves treasures on Earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal. But lay up for yourselves treasures in Heaven where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal," for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.

Avner the Eccentric at Gould next week

Gould Academy's Performing Arts Series will open on Thursday, Oct. 5, 7:30 p.m., with a performance by "Avner the Eccentric," a widely acclaimed one-man vaudeville act.

Perhaps best known for his portrayal of the scene-stealing holy man in the movie "The Jewel of the Nile," Avner the Eccentric's creator, Peaks Island, Maine, resident Avner Eisenberg, studied mime in Paris, tours internationally, and has been featured on television specials throughout the world. Critic Joel Siegal of ABC-TV writes of Avner's comedy, "I laughed for two solid hours. The show only lasted an hour and a half. The last thirty minutes I remembered and laughed all over again."

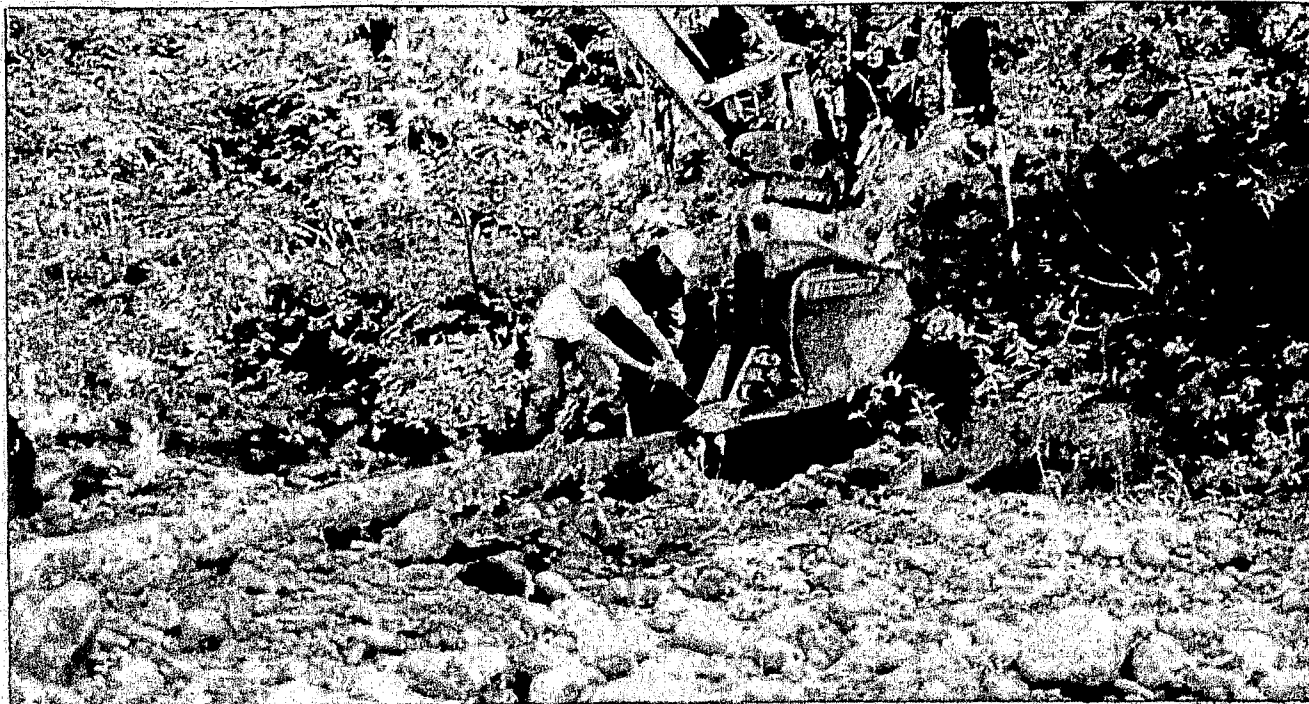

All shows in Gould's Performing Arts Series are open to the public. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students, and are available at the door. For further information, contact Vicki Rackliffe at 824-3575.

Foliage flotilla sets out Saturday

The Eighth Annual Foliage Flotilla will be held this coming Saturday, Sept. 30, by the Friends of the Androscoggin. This is a favorite event for many local folks who enjoy recreating on the river, and many visitors to the area enjoy it as well. It's a great chance to get on the river and to observe the wildlife and beauty of the area while sharing time with family and friends. All are welcome.

Put-in time will be 10 a.m. at Davis Park (just south of the village on Route 26) and take-out will be near Hastings Farm in East Bethel at approximately 3 p.m. A shuttle back to cars will be available.

Bring a lunch for a stop on one of the islands. For more information, contact Tom or Melinda Remington at River View (824-2808) or Steve Wight at Sunday River Inn (824-2410).

HELP FOR THE TROUT—A White Mountain National Forest project to restore the habitat for Eastern brook trout in Evans Brook was carried out last week near Hastings Campground. District wildlife biologist Lesley Rowse said logging near the turn of the century resulted in the loss of large old trees along the banks, making it difficult for trout to flourish. She said that large wood in stream channels and along the banks helps stabilize the channels and diversify the habitat and food for the trout and other aquatic animals. To remedy the situation, crews placed logs, cover trees, boulders, and rootwads in and along the brook. The structures will increase the variety of flow patterns, increase water depth, and create spawning areas. They will also trap and store organic material and provide places for the fish to hide. Here, workmen place a log near the stream.

HEALTHY LIVING

Flu Season Is On Its Way!

by: The Bethel Area Health Center

What is influenza? It is an illness caused by influenza viruses and can affect people of all ages. Usually people with the "flu" have a fever, chills, headache, cough, and muscle aches and may be sick for several days to a week or so.

The risk of complications from the flu is highest for people with chronic health problems like diabetes; disease of the heart, lungs or kidneys; severe anemia, or who have chronic illnesses or are taking medications which lower the body's resistance to infection such as chemotherapy drugs and long term use of steroids. It is also high for older persons generally, particularly those 65 years old or older. Medical personnel should administer a vaccine to any person wishing to reduce their chances of acquiring influenza infection.

Influenza vaccine should not be given to persons who have severe allergies to eggs, persons with acute illness should not be vaccinated until they feel well again.

Annually the Bethel Area Health Center staff conducts flu clinics in the Bethel Area. Persons receiving flu vaccine at a scheduled flu clinic will be charged $7 (except those persons receiving Medicare). Flu clinics are walk-in clinics and require no pre-appointment.

New Neurology Service Available at Stephens Memorial Hospital

By: Joanna Backman

Stephens Memorial Hospital is pleased to announce a visiting neurology service offered by Maine Neurology of Portland. Beginning on September 20, they will hold a clinic every other Wednesday at the office of Robert Story, M.D., on Green Street in Norway. The service will emphasize new consultation and EMG (a test of nerve - muscle function) referrals. Maine Neurology is a group practice based in Portland, whose physicians include John Kelly Sullivan, M.D., Richard L. Sullivan, M.D., T. Edward Collins, D.O., and John R. Belden, M.D.

"Over the years, we have enjoyed a good working relationship with the physicians in the Norway area. We look forward to enhancing this relationship. This service will be beneficial to all involved: patients, local physicians, Stephens Memorial Hospital and Maine Neurology," the physicians at Maine Neurology comment.

"We are happy to once again expand our services so our patients receive better and more convenient care. With this new service, there are now even fewer reasons someone would have to travel outside the Oxford Hills to have the best in medical care," adds Harrison Hahn, Stephens Memorial Hospital President.

The Flu Shot and Who Should Receive It.

by Teofilo L. Lee-Chiong, Jr., M.D. Mountain Health Services

Influenza causes approximately 10,000 to 20,000 deaths in this country annually. The influenza vaccine (flu shot) has been available for many years and is highly effective in preventing this illness and minimizing its complications. However, a number of misconceptions concerning its effectiveness and safety have limited its acceptance and use. The following are the answers to eleven of the most frequently asked questions about the flu shot.

1. What Causes Influenza?

Influenza is caused by an RNA virus. RNA viruses are also responsible for rabies, measles, mumps and hepatitis. Hooklets on its surface enable the virus to attach itself to the lining of the air passages leading to bronchitis, pneumonia, congestive heart failure and worsening of emphysema. The influenza virus is classified into different types (A, B, or C), subtypes and strains. These viruses are highly mutable and change constantly.

2. What is a Flu Shot?

The influenza vaccine in a flu shot typically consists of components from two influenza A and one influenza B viral strains. Researchers from the World Health Organization and the United States Food and Drug Administration determine the particular organisms included in each year's vaccine based on the prevalent strains of the previous year. These viruses are then cultured in embryonated eggs, harvested, killed with formaldehyde and finally diluted to produce the final commercial product.

3. Should I Get A Flu Shot?

It is recommended that anyone over 65 years of age receive this vaccine. In addition, residents of nursing homes, those with diabetes, individuals with chronic disorders affecting the lungs, heart and kidneys, persons with impaired defenses against infections including those suffering from AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) and cancers, and children receiving daily aspirin therapy are candidates for the flu shot. Finally, individuals who take care of persons with long-term medical conditions (physicians, nurses, hospital and nursing home employees, and household members) should also be vaccinated to reduce the risk of transmitting the virus to their patients.

4. How Often Should I Get A Flu Shot?

Due to the ever-changing nature of the influenza viruses, the flu shot you received last year may not protect you from the dominant strain this year. Thus, the vaccine must be repeated annually.

5. Why Should I Get A Flu Shot?

If you belong to any of the groups in which vaccination is recommended, the vaccine is estimated to reduce deaths and serious complications following influenza infections by 50%.

6. Is there Anyone Who Should Not Get The Flu Shot?

Since the flu vaccine is prepared from embryonated eggs, it may contain trace quantities of egg proteins. Therefore, persons allergic to eggs must not be given the vaccine. Previous allergic reactions to chicken and feathers is not considered a contraindication to vaccination.

7. When Should I Receive My Flu Shot?

Pharmaceutical companies release the vaccine in September and vaccinations are usually offered in October, November and early December. The influenza "season" generally starts in late December and lasts until March.

8. Where Can I Get My Flu Shot?

The flu shot may be obtained locally at the Bethel Health Center (see schedule) and Mountain Health Services will provide influenza vaccinations on October 10 and 12 at the MHS Berlin Office and on October 18 and 25 at the MHS Gorham Office. MHS plans to schedule two additional days for vaccinations in November. The flu shot may also be obtained from the various visiting nurse groups.

9. What is the Cost of a Flu Shot?

A flu shot usually costs from five to seven dollars. This amount is covered by Medicare and a number of private insurance companies. Ask your insurance company for more information.

10. Will I Get Sick From the Flu Shot?

Serious side-effects are rare. However, most patients will experience soreness and minor swelling over the injection site.

11. Who Can I Reach If I Have More Questions About The Flu Shot?

Your own doctor can answer most of your questions. Inquiries may also be addressed to Mountain Health Services, Berlin Office, 59 Page Hill Road, Berlin, NH. More detailed information is available and will be mailed to you upon request.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR PROHIBITION.

Fernald Elected by About 8000 Plurality.

Four Republican Congressmen and Good Republican Majority in Senate and House.

After the hardest fought fight ever made in the State of Maine, with the greatest vote getting issue that the Democratic party have ever operated on, they went down to defeat last Monday with 8,000 votes to the bad, which leaves them in practically the same condition as at the end of the first great fight on the same issue two years ago.

The result is indeed a victory for prohibition and temperance in the State of Maine, and though the Republican plurality is far below former pluralities it cannot be claimed a Democratic victory, nor a victory for resubmission and license, because when the first campaign was fought on this issue two years ago it resulted in a sifting out from the Republican party men who were in sympathy with the license movement and recording them in the Democratic ranks, the result of which was the reducing of the Republican party to the 8,000 mark.

The result this year shows that the sifting was practically done two years ago and that those who stood with the Republican party for temperance and prohibition then, stand there still to such a remarkable degree, that the vote is almost precisely as it was two years ago.

In addition to the general result the Republicans have won back to the fold Cumberland County electing the entire County ticket and nearly all of the rep-representatives. The same has been done in Kennebec County, while the Democratic party has been cut almost in the middle in Androscoggin County.

Hon. B. M. Fernald.

The four representatives to Congress have been elected with the usual safe plurality and the Senate and House will both be Republican by a good working majority.

Oxford County stands in its usual place with over 1,500 Republican votes to the good. The vote in the County for Governor is as follows:

News from the The Bethel Library

Thanks to the generosity of Carolyn Nygren, there are 40 new books on science and nature in the children's section of the Bethel Library. Ms. Nygren gave the books to the library in memory of her mother, Ethel Nygren, who spent summers in Bethel for almost 30 years. She ran a summer camp in Albany for many years, introducing children to science and ecology. Ranging from picture books for the youngest readers to reference books for older elementary students, the books are a valuable addition to the library.

Barbara Douglass and her daughters gave four travel videos to the library in honor of Dana Douglass' birthday. The videos are: "Country Gardens," one of Audrey Hepburn's tours of beautiful gardens around the world; "The World's Most Mysterious Places: England," which covers Stonehenge, Glastonbury, and Land's End; "The Alaska Experience;" and "National Parks: South and East," covering Acadia, the Great Smoky Mountains, Everglades, Great Lakes, Mississippi River, Hot Springs, and Utah. The videos will make great arm-chair traveling for the winter months ahead.

UNITED METHODIST WOMEN

Bethel United Methodist Women held the first meeting following summer recess on Sept. 7 at the church dining room, with Lynn Mason of Bethel as guest speaker.

The meeting opened with a salute to the flag, a prayer by the president, Virginia Keniston, and repeating of the Lord's Prayer. A collection of $4.50 was taken. It was announced that Rose Dyer had tendered her resignation as vice president as she planned to be moving soon and would spend the winter in Florida. Ann Fitzmorris was welcomed as a new member.

Sixty-two sick calls were reported. Among those remembered by the sunshine committee were Leslie Bonney, Gus Carter, Jack Brooks, Carolyn Brooks, Edwin Brown, Betty Blake, Florine Bowden, Katie Kennagh, the Barker family and Evelyn Reed. It was noted that Wilma Gorman and Dana Brooks were presently hospitalized.

The next meeting is the afternoon of Thursday, Oct. 5, and will be hosted by Pauline Wieden and Musa Brown.

Agnes Gray School

by Marta Clements

We like to think that we have a lot going on at our two schools, but September 13 was full to overflowing with activities. The kindergarten and first grade went on their first field trip of the year by attending Kids' Day at the Oxford County Fair. There was a little rain, but not enough to dampen their excitement and learning. Meanwhile, a group of musicians from the junior high school, under the direction of Charles Ochtmann and Blaise Spath, presented a demonstration of musical instruments to grades four, five and six. Fourth-graders have the opportunity to have lessons on the stringed instruments, and fifth- and sixth-graders have the chance to choose any instrument. If your child did not bring home a paper concerning renting an instrument, and you are interested in having your child begin on an instrument, please give the school a call.

Following the music demonstration, the fifth-graders returned to the classroom to meet Deputy Tripp and have their first D.A.R.E. lesson. In the past this program has taken place in the spring, but this year we are changing, and our D.A.R.E. graduation will be scheduled for mid-January.

In the afternoon, beginning at 12:30, our music teacher, Dan Barker, began his enrichment programs. Interested children signed up to learn how to play the tone chimes and the Orff instruments. At 1 p.m. he met with a group who will be making up this year's chorus.

Our Open House was held from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m. and there was a very good turnout. The Scholastic Book Fair was going on at the same time, and we want to thank all the volunteers who manned the fair.

I suspect the rest of September will be as busy. Here are some upcoming dates and activities to mark on your calendars, Friday, Sept. 22, is the first Early Release day of the year. The children will eat lunch at school and be dismissed at 12:30 p.m. Last year we accomplished a great deal during these School Improvement Early Release Days. Our enrichment committee was responsible for planning and executing several excellent programs. We examined several issues that we wanted to improve upon in our own local school and began working on them. They really are worth the time and effort that everyone, including parents, are putting into them. And, we are currently looking for a parent, or other interested community member, who would like to be a part of our School Improvement Team. We want, and need, input from your point of view. Please call the school for more information.

On Monday, Sept. 25, a representative from Cherrydale Farms held a rally at school to kick off the first fund-raising activity of the year sponsored by the parent volunteer group. This was not candy bars, but will involve sales from a catalog. We hope to complete the campaign in two weeks. It may be early, but there may be some good Christmas ideas here!

On Tuesday, Sept. 26, Al McKeen from North Atlantic Studios was here for school pictures.

Please be watching for the date of the first official Parent Volunteer meeting. We will send it home in the newsletter, and post it on our sign. It should be coming right up.
